SPORTSMEXICANS SALUTE
FLAG AS APOLOGY,
REPORT INDICATES

Admiral Mayo, in Later Report From Tampico, Does Not Mention Any Resistance to His Demand Following Arrest of Paymaster and Marines in Besieged City.

HUERTA'S APOLOGY IS SENT FROM CAPITAL

Navy Department Orders Fleet Commander to Prevent Firing on Foreign Property by Either of the Belligerents and Leaves Methods to Him.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Formal demand that Mexican officials concerned in the arrest of a United States paymaster and a small detachment of marines salute the American flag as an apology is believed to have been complied with, although not mentioned specifically in an official report received here today by Secretary Daniels and forwarded immediately by him to President Wilson at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Rear Admiral Mayo reported that after the marines, who had been landed at the Tampico bridge to get a supply of gasoline, were released on his demand, he gave the Huerta commander 24 hours to salute the American colors as an apology. The time expired at 6 o'clock last night. Secretary Daniels interpreted press dispatches, saying the Mexican commander had apologized as meaning he had complied with Admiral Mayo's demand.

Later Charge O'Shaughnessy officially reported Gen. Huerta's apology for the arrest and detention of the marines and forwarded a copy of a statement issued by Huerta.

The Navy Department has instructed Admiral Mayo to prevent further firing on American and other foreign property in the Tampico district by either the Federals or the rebels. Secretary Daniels has left the question of adequate protection up to Admiral Mayo, but it is not believed that he would act without consulting Rear Admiral Fletcher, who is at Vera Cruz.

Oil Tank Is on Fire.

Reports to the State Department said several oil tanks at Tampico had been struck by shells, that one was on fire and that oil was running into the river. While the State Department announcement did not mention which plant was on fire, it is supposed to be the same one reported afame by Admiral Mayo last night.

In addition to the half-dozen American ships off Tampico, France, Spain, Germany and Great Britain have war craft there. Little concern is felt for foreign ships in Tampico except Spain, but it is reported the Constitutionalists threatened to exile all of that nationality if they occupy the city, just as they did when the Federal forces withdrew from Torreon. As far as known, there are 700 or 800 Spaniards in the besieged port.

Meanwhile officials are without information concerning the reported resumption of fighting in the Torreon district. The State Department was informed that the bands of Zapatistas which captured Chilpancingo has taken Iguala, on the railway to the Southwest. They plan an attack on Acapulco in order to gain a portion of the Pacific Coast.

The railroad between San Luis Potosi and Tampico is cut, according to a report from the former place. Rail communication from Eagle Pass to Saltillo was opened yesterday.

Villa Continues to Expel Spaniards.

Despite the State Department's renewed protest against wholesale expulsion of Spaniards from Mexico, Consul Hamm reported today that Gen. Villa had reiterated his order that all Spaniards must leave the section under his control. He also reports confiscation of some Spanish properties. No reply has been received to Secretary Bryan's communication to Carranza demanding that all cases of emulsion be considered on their individual merits.

Meanwhile Consular Agent Carothers and other Consular officers in districts where there are Spanish colonists will continue to press the State Department's demands for the safety of Spanish lives and property.

Consul Hamm reports heavy fighting at San Pedro, but did not indicate the results. Latest official advices were summarized in this statement:

"Chaotic conditions at Torreon are reported to the State Department, but the commander-in-chief of the forces occupying the district has promised that all foreign property shall be protected. It is insisted, however, that all Spaniards must leave the section under his control and confiscations of the abandoned property have occurred."

Spain Asks U. S. to Intercede in Behalf of Expelled Subjects.

MADRID, Spain, April 11.—The Spanish Foreign Minister today asked Col. Joseph E. Willard, United States Ambassador to Spain, to request the Government at Washington to intercede in favor of the 300 Spanish subjects expelled from Torreon.

Official forecast for St. Louis and vicinity: Fair tonight and Sunday; cooler tonight, with frost in low grounds; rising temperature.

Fair weather with a temperature drop enough to make promenading in the parks and boulevards comfortable and delightful is the Easter weather prospect held out to St. Louis by weather forecaster.

There are some elements of chance in this forecast, however. Whether fair skies will smile on Easter gowns and hats depends on a combination of weather circumstances.

When Forecaster Hayes took down his chart Saturday to figure out the Easter weather here is what he found: A storm dancing a tango over the lake region; another doing a war dance down in Texas, and still another spreading over New Mexico and Arizona. But away up in the northwest the forecaster found a ray of hope for St. Louis.

An area of high barometric pressure was found in the two Dakotas and Montana. This was pushing its way to the southeast with St. Louis in its path. If it can force its way through the group of storms hovering over the Northwest, it will reach here with its clear skies and crisp temperature some time Saturday night.

Figuring that all this is going to happen, the forecaster felt justified in predicting a beautiful Easter, with a gradually rising temperature. There will be frost in the low places Saturday night, if the clouds disperse.

From these few pointers by the weather man, St. Louis can make its own preparations for the Easter parade. It all depends on whether that "high" from the Northwest gets here on schedule time.

CANCER CURABLE IF IT IS LOCAL, DR. MAYO ASSERTS

Specialists Agree on Campaign of Education to Fight Disease in America.

DEATH RATE INCREASES

not Be Permanently Relieved by Radium When Internal Causes Not Known.

Cancer Deaths Increase in Seven Large Cities

NEW YORK, April 15.—OFFMAN said that the cancer death rate for New York City in 1913 was 82, against an average of 70; for Brooklyn, 79, against an average of 70; Baltimore, 105, against 84; Chicago, 86, against 81; Philadelphia, 95, against 88, and St. Louis, 95, against 85.

"The combined cancer death rate for the seven cities," he said, "was 80 for each 100,000 of population for 1913, against a combined average of 82 for the last five years."

"The evidence, therefore, seems quite conclusive that during the last year there has been again a perceptible and a relatively considerable increase in the cancer death rate."

NEW YORK, April 11.—"All that an ordinary person needs to know at first is that cancer is local. When it is local it is curable. Persons with cancer should go to a physician in time."

So said Dr. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., at a public meeting held by the American Society for the Control of Cancer, in the New York Academy of Medicine last night.

Other speakers were Dr. Clement Cleveland, vice-president of the society; Frederick L. Hoffman, statistician of the Prudential Life Insurance Co. of America; Prof. Francis Carter Wood, M.D., director of cancer research; George Crocker, special research fund, Columbia University, and Dr. J. Collier Warren, professor emeritus Harvard University, chairman Harvard Cancer Committee.

Cases of Cancer Not Known. Points upon which the speakers—authorities on cancer in this country—were agreed were:

1. Cancer in its first stages is curable.

2. The causes of cancer are not known.

3. It is not known whether cancer is hereditary.

4. There is absolutely no cure for cancer except to cut it out.

5. Go to a physician at the first sign of trouble. Preferably, be examined by a physician at frequent intervals, anyhow.

6. The idea that cancer in men is may give rise to cancer in women is fantastic. Tumors are not contagious.

7. Radium does not permanently cure internal cancer. It may check the growth for a while, but sooner or later it comes back. Popular belief in radium is based on the fact that cures are heard from—not the failures. The failures outnumber the cures 100 to 1.

8. Seventy-five thousand persons died of cancer in the United States in 1913.

Ignorance Is Blamed.

Dr. Cleveland was the first speaker.

"In its onset, cancer is invariably local and can be cured almost invariably. Seventy-five thousand people died of cancer in 1913. A further increase is expected in 1914."

"The appalling condition in which we find ourselves is due to public ignorance and neglect. To overcome this the speakers came to carry on against it a campaign of education to spread the knowledge concerning the symptoms, diagnosis and treatment of cancer, to end delay in seeking medical advice and appeal to thoughtful and influential persons to help to supply speakers and to help financially."

"One newspaper, at least, quoted me as saying that meat is the cause of cancer," said Dr. Mayo. "As far as I know, there is nothing to show that meat eaters suffer more from cancer than other persons. To attribute such a statement to me was absurd."

"Surely the ignorance of the common people on the subject of cancer must be colossal. Ten years ago it was the same way with tuberculosis. Now the way people talk about tuberculosis is nothing short of marvelous."

Dr. Mayo then showed that various forms of irritation cause precancerous conditions. Here he mentioned cancer of the lower lip, which is rarely encountered in non-smokers. He said that the proper prophylaxis would be to eradicate habits which cause the lesions that lead to cancer. He said that 90 per cent of the cancer in India is among betel nut chewers.

"If they would stop chewing betel nuts there would be 90 per cent less cancer in India," he said.

It is extraordinary that the average man does not know that cancer can be cured. It is unfortunate that cancer carries with it certain stigma. Hundreds of persons who have been cured say nothing about it. They would as soon talk about their cancer as say they had been ill."

Many Kinds of Cancer.

Besides saying that we don't know many more now about the causes of cancer than the ancient Greeks, Prof. Woods said:

"1. We have found that there are many varieties of cancer.

"2. That among these varieties are not only tumors which are always and rapidly fatal, but also cancers of slow growth—as slow as to be almost harmless."

"3. That the nature of the tumors

GIRL AND ESCORT ATTACKED BY 3 MASKED NEGROES

Miss Catherine Motsch in East St. Louis Fights Assailants Until They Run.

Miss Catherine Motsch, 18 years old, of 1208 Kansas avenue, East St. Louis, after an attempted attack, was robbed by three masked negroes near Fifteenth and Bond streets. Friday night, as she was returning from church to the home of her uncle, S. G. Smith, 1022 Bond avenue. Her escort, Luke Blackburn of 517 Brighton place, was prevented from aiding her by one of the negroes holding a revolver at his head.

Blackburn and Miss Motsch had been to St. Henry's Catholic Church, Fifth street and Broadway. They had intended to go south on Tenth street to Bond avenue, but passed Tenth street without noticing it and then decided to go on to Fifteenth street, the next lighted thoroughfare.

They had turned into Bond avenue from Fifteenth street and were walking west on the south side of Bond avenue, when three negroes ran up behind them. Two wore white masks and the third a blue mask made of handkerchiefs. One held a stiletto at the girl's throat, another pointed a revolver at Blackburn's head and the girl and escort were ordered to hold up their hands.

They were compelled to walk along a path through the weeds to the rear of an abandoned house. Blackburn was

SWears Physician Told of Harboring DOROTHY ARNOLD

Pittsburg Doctor Says Fellow Practitioner Once Knew Whereabouts of Girl.

Special to the Post-Dispatch PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 11.—Acting on an affidavit sworn to by Dr. H. E. Lutz, a member of the Allegheny County Medical Association, District Attorney R. H. Jackson is making the disappearance of Miss Dorothy Arnold, a member of a rich New York family, a part of his investigation of a maternity hospital at Bellevue, which was raided by county detectives Thursday night. Bellevue is a fashionable suburb about five miles from the city.

Dr. Lutz is being held by the District Attorney as a witness in connection with the raid on the hospital. It was conducted by Dr. C. C. Meredith, one of the best-known practitioners in the county.

The detective on Thursday arrested the two physicians, a trained nurse and two servants as the result of a search for Mrs. Myrtle Allison, who vanished from her home here several weeks ago.

The disappearance of Dorothy Arnold was then thought of District Attorney Jackson said: "But when Dr. Lutz was taken to my office he said he had repeatedly warned Dr. Meredith against taking criminal responsibility."

Meredith, according to Dr. Lutz, informed me, had taken the case of Mrs. Allison, and when asked what had become of her, replied, "Oh, she has gone."

"Then I asked Dr. Lutz to make an affidavit of his relations with Dr. Meredith, as he impressed me with his sincerity."

"When I told him what a dangerous game it was he was playing he said that he never was worried about it." Dr. Lutz swore in his affidavit, "There was a certain person from New York who was traced as far as my office but no farther; it was Dorothy Arnold."

By actions he intimated that she was his patient.

Claims Nurse Could Corroborate Him.

The District Attorney asked Dr. Lutz if he could offer any corroboration to his affidavit and Dr. Lutz replied that he had no information to corroborate his claim.

Burwell Says He Slept Wrong.

Burwell, who is 21, is in Waterbury, Conn., where he is crossing Forty-third street when Rosenthal was shot on the morning of July 16, 1912. He swears he saw a man, about 5 feet 8 inches in height, fire two shots and then run to the gray automobile, which drove away, carrying others in it. This man, he is certain, was not any of the four now in a death house. Burwell declared that he could identify the murderer if he could see him again.

Assistant District Attorney Delehanty and Frederick Groehl, who is aiding him, say they have learned that the man Dresner swears he went to see at the Garden Restaurant had not worked there for some time previously, and when he did work there had been employed only in the daytime.

Waterbury Police Say Burwell Was Arrested for Many Offenses.

WATERBURY, Conn., April 11.—William Burwell, one of the men who made an affidavit in favor of the gunmen, is said to have a record well known to the police here. His record, as given by Capt. Dodd, chief of Detectives, shows that Burwell, who has a good record, and is known as a good boy, was once a member of a gang of boys on a miser's board of several thousand dollars in New Milford. Burwell gave way under questioning and the money was recovered.

Since 1906 Burwell, the police record shows, has been arrested 10 times for offenses including theft, shop-lifting, assault, breach of the peace and non-support. He has been arrested in New Haven, Meriden, Bridgeport and Ansonia, as well as in this city.

Burwell is known here as a pool and billiard expert. He has not been here for several weeks.

Three Thousand Offers of Homes to TOMORROW!

James Sweeney, 33 years old, night clerk at the Ironside Hotel, 107 South Seventh street, summoned Patrolman John Voss to his office about 11:20 p.m. Friday.

"Take me to the hospital quick," said Sweeney. "I believe I'm going to die."

Voss called an ambulance, but before the city hospital was reached Sweeney was dead. His body was taken to the morgue, where an autopsy will be performed to determine the cause of death. There was no indication of violence and the police believe Sweeney suffered a heart stroke.

What Happened After Interview?

made after he had been interviewed by the New York attorney," the District Attorney said. "I wish it to be understood that I am not attempting to exploit a sensational story, but it is my sworn duty to get at the bottom of this matter."

The District Attorney had received no word from Miss Arnold's father, or from John S. Keith, the family attorney. He was told that the lawyer had issued a statement that he had, shortly after the disappearance of Miss Arnold, searched a local sanitarium, but had left there convinced that she was not a patient.

Family Lawyer Could Give Aid.

"Mr. Keith would aid us greatly if he would give the exact date of his visit and such circumstances as would enable us to tell whether or not the statement Dr. Lutz attributes to Dr. Meredith was made after he had been interviewed by the New York attorney," the District Attorney said. "I wish it to be understood that I am not attempting to exploit a sensational story, but it is my sworn duty to get at the bottom of this matter."

Dr. Meredith, who refused to answer any questions put to him by the District Attorney, was released today under a $10,000 bail on a charge of illegal practice and on a bail of $2000 on a charge of having stolen clothing and jewels belonging to Mrs. Allison. Miss Orr, the trained nurse, was released on a nominal bond, but the District Attorney said that both would be kept under surveillance by detectives.

MAN FINED $75 FOR PUTTING 2 GIRLS OUT OF AN AUTO

Partner of Autoist Who Was With Party on Night Ride Is Dismissed.

For putting two girls out of an automobile 25 miles from St. Louis, after midnight, Henry Schoenberg of 3426 Texas avenue was fined $75 and costs by a jury in Justice Kleineberg's court Friday afternoon. A case against Nicholas Tieross of 3911 Illinois avenue, a companion of Schoenberg, was dismissed.

The two girls were Clara Schallert, 19, of 1921 Montgomery street, and Bertha Jackson, 17, of 222 Alcott avenue.

The girls, after being put out of the automobile, walked two miles to a farm house, where they spent the rest of the night. The next morning, after making a complaint to Justice Kleineberg, they came home on a streetcar.

Miss Schallert testified that she and Miss Jackson met Schoenberg and Tieross at Ninth and Montgomery streets the night of April 5 and got into an automobile with them. They were driven out to Clayton and from there to a road house, the girls testified, where the two men drank beer and the girls soda.

From the roadhouse they drove on to Manchester, Miss. Schallert said. Schoenberg's conduct became offensive toward her, she said, and she and Miss Jackson were forced to leave the machine. She testified that Schoenberg told them they would have to get out and walk home.

Both girls testified there was nothing improper in the conduct of Tieross, Schoenberg, testifying in his own behalf, said he met the two girls by appointment, and started out for a drive with them.

When they reached Manchester, he said, the girls got out and danced by the roadside, but refused to get back in the automobile. He denied his conduct had been improper. He said he tried to persuade the girls to get into the machine and come back to the city, but as they would not do so, he was compelled to leave them by the roadside.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John E. Mooney conducted the case against Schoenberg. An appeal was taken.

Schoenberg is an electrician, 24 years old. Tieross is a machinist, 21 years old.

Treaty Provides That Merchantile Vessels Shall Pay, Bryan Explains.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Colombia, under the terms of the new treaty between this country and the United States, signed at Bogota Tuesday, is exempted from the payment of canal tolls on all Government vessels. Merchantile vessels are not exempted.

Secretary of State Bryan made this assertion following inquiries whether he had made such a statement to Senator O'Gorman of New York earlier in the day. Bryan said this provision in the treaty is the same as was in the treaty of 1909, which failed of ratification by the Colombian Government.

Senator O'Gorman was informed by Bryan that Great Britain agreed to the exemption of the vessels of the Government of Colombia from the payment of canal tolls. He said Great Britain agreed to this at the time of the negotiations of the 1909 treaty.

Considerable opposition outlined has developed from representatives sought reserve banks successful in their efforts. The committee's statement reply to these critics.

Secretary Bryan said he would give the new Colombian treaty to the public on April 15. He said that at the time probably will issue a statement giving the administration's reasons for agreeing to the same provisions in the treaty. The statement will cover the administration's reasons for abandoning its demands for the right to construct a canal across the Republic of Colombia by way of the Atrato River, which was provided in the treaty negotiated by Mr. Root and Sen. Carter.

Why Spring Colds Are Dangerous

If Neglected They Lead to Serious, Perhaps Fatal Results

If you get cold at this time of year and try "let it wear off," it frequently develops into a stubborn lung trouble, which may in turn become chronic asthma, bronchitis or consumption. It is important to remember that Father John's Medicine relieves colds because of its nourishing body-building elements, which give strength to the system and enable each organ to resume its normal function. Father John's Medicine is not a patent medicine, contains no injurious drugs, but is a pure food medicine, for those who are weak and rundown.—ADV.

REGIONAL BANK COMMITTEE REPLY HALTS CRITICISM

Congressmen and Others Objecting to Locations Await Analysis of Explanation.

DEFENSE OF KANSAS CITY

Protestors Do Not or Appear Not to Know What Institutions Will Do, Statement Says.

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, April 11.—Members of Congress and others who have criticized the Federal Reserve Bank Organization Committee's selection of bank cities and its definition of reserve districts, were discussing today the statement of the committee in defense of its position. They plan to analyze the statement before making any further efforts to have the committee reconsider its selection.

Considerable opposition to the district outlined has developed in Congress and from representatives in cities which sought reserve banks, but were unsuccessful in their efforts to get them. The committee's statement was issued in reply to these criticisms.

Members of the committees hoped today that their answer would convince critics that they had acted in the best interests of the country in their selection of the bank reserve sites. The reason which actuated the committee in selecting Atlanta and Dallas against New Orleans, Richmond in preference to Baltimore, and Kansas City instead of Denver, Omaha and Lincoln, Neb., are set forth in great detail.

Critics Do Not or Will Not Understand

"Critics of the decision of the committee," the statement says, "reveal misunderstandings and either do not know or appear not to know that the Federal Reserve banks are member banks, and not ordinary commercial banks; that they are to hold the reserves and to clear the checks of member banks, make rediscounts for them and engage in certain open market operations. As a matter of fact, the ordinary every-day banking relations of the community of business men and of banks will not be greatly modified or altered."

The statement shows that the committee's poll of national banks applying for membership in the system favored Dallas and Atlanta over New Orleans in that part of the South and Southwest which was included in the districts decided upon. It showed that the capital and surplus of national banks in Atlanta was greater than in New Orleans, while in Dallas it was less, but that both Dallas and Atlanta the loans and deposits of individual depositors were greater than in the Louisiana city.

In support of its choice of Kansas City, the committee said that Montana, Idaho, Arizona, Texas and Nebraska opposed Denver and that the majority of banks in a tentative district suggested by Omaha were opposed to its selection and preferred other cities.

"It seemed impossible," the statement continues, "to serve the great section from Kansas City to the mountains in any other way than by creating a district with Kansas City as the headquarters to provide for the North-western section except by creating a district with Minneapolis as headquarters."

"The only other thing that could have been done with Nebraska under the conditions, which presented themselves, was to relate her to Chicago and this seemed to be inadvisable in the circumstances. The Kansas City banks serve a very distinctive territory and will serve it more satisfactorily than St. Louis could have done. The relations of that territory, on the whole, are much more largely with Kansas City than with any other city in the Middle West with which it could have been connected."

Prince Henry at Montevideo.
MONTEVIDEO, April 11.—Prince Henry of Prussia arrived here on board the Argentine cruiser Catamarca from Buenos Aires. The President of the republic, Jose Batlle y Ordóñez, gave a dinner in his honor, which was attended by the German Minister, Baron von Nordenflicht, other members of the diplomatic corps and the Presidents of the Senate and Chamber.

SONS OF COAL MINERS TO SING FOR PRISONERS

Boy Chair Leader Will Speak Sunday Afternoon in Madison County Jail.

Surrounded by a dozen sons of coal miners from Marion whom he has been instructing in singing for many months, Miss Coila Richards of Staunton, a graduate of the Moody Bible Institute at Chicago, will deliver an address to prisoners in the Madison County jail at Edwardsville Sunday afternoon.

The talk will have to do with Biblical topics. Members of the boys' choir which Miss Richards has organized will sing for the inmates of the jail.

Miss Richards visited the jail at that time she talked with Nikolai Gavrilovich, condemned to death for the killing of his wife. Gavrilovich told Miss Richards he had made his peace with God and was ready to die.

Miss Richards studied to be a missionary to China, but changed her plans after leaving school.

'WETS' OFFER $500 IN THE HUNT FOR A MISSING PASTOR

Westville (Ill.) Saloon Men Aid Search to Prove They Didn't Cause Disappearance.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DANVILLE, Ill., April 11.—Saloon men of Westville, the village from which the Rev. Louis B. Patmout, an anti-liquor leader, disappeared, March 31, offered a reward of $500 for information concerning his whereabouts or for evidence tending to show that they are in any way responsible for his absence.

This reward is the result of repeated insinuations that the saloon forces had either driven him out of the city or had caused him to be captured and held until after the local option elections in Illinois.

The disappearance of the Rev. Mr. Patmout is the most inexplicable and mysterious that has confronted Vermilion County authorities in many years, and coming in the heat of a local option campaign has aroused the people of both sides to a high pitch of excitement.

Safety appliances from the demonstration car of the mine rescue station at Urbana, which arrived at Westville for the instruction of miners in rescue work will be used in searching abandoned coal mines in that vicinity.

Detectors from this and adjoining counties met at Westville, and again an organized search of the town and vicinity was made under the direction of the Sheriff's forces, but, as on each previous day, resulted in failure.

When Old Age Overtakes Us.

Mrs. John Widmayer of Jackson, Mich., says: "Although 69 years of age and, naturally, because of my advanced age, in an enfeebled condition, I can truthfully say that Vinol has done wonders to keep me as active as I am. It is the best medicine to create strength that I ever saw. This spring I was very much run down and worn out, but I took Vinol and soon felt stronger and able to work about the house. I can recommend Vinol as a very invigorating tonic."

Should the system get run-down—digestive organs weak—the blood thin and sluggish—take Vinol, which is a double combination of the medicinal—body-building properties of cod's liver with the useful grease eliminated and tonic iron added. ## COURT PENALIZES U. R. LAWYERS FOR DILATORY METHODS

They Delayed Filing Appeal Briefs and Can't Make Oral Arguments in Two Cases.

Presiding Judge Reynolds figured in an unusual incident in the St. Louis Court of Appeals when, in a speech before the bench last Thursday, he denounced dilatory methods of the United Railways' staff of lawyers and ordered the dismissal of the United Railways' appeal from a $305 personal injury verdict.

Immediately after this second case, in which the United Railways had appealed from a judgement obtained by Mary Stoltze, came up. As in the first case, it was learned the United Railways' lawyers had not prepared their brief within the time limit fixed by law. Judge Reynolds was about to dismiss this appeal also, when he conferred with his associates, Judges Norton and Allen.

Another Chance for U. R.

A few minutes later the presiding Judge Reynolds figured in an unusual incident in the St. Louis Court of Appeals when, in a speech before the bench last Thursday, he denounced dilatory methods of the United Railways' staff of lawyers and ordered the dismissal of the United Railways' appeal from a $305 personal injury verdict.

Two Appeals Dismissed.

These two appeals were dismissed, apparently, without any dissension of opinion between the three judges.

The first case, which aroused Presiding Judge Reynolds, was that of Ada McKenzie, who was given a verdict of $305 in the Circuit Court Feb. 20, 1912. The United Railways appealed. Although more than two hours had passed, the United Railways' brief was not filed with Julian Laughlin, attorney for the plaintiff, and his efforts to obtain it were without result.

Paul U. Farley, of the law firm of Boyle & Priest, attorneys for the United Railways, told the court another member of the firm had been sick and that was why the brief had not been prepared.

THE MIRAGE

VER, the sun-scorched, glaring sand. Under the pitiless, molten sky,uring on with a mocking hand, Over the stretches white-hot and dry; hinting a picture of rippling streams, Glassy valleys and cooling shade—Here in the desert it glows and gleams, In magic beauty, but false, arrayed.

In a withering, vast expanse, parched and shriveled and dead and bare.

But where the shimmering heat waves on, lure and call in enticing strains, its waters lave on a shining shore. Whispers of billowy, fertile plains, and bloom-decked hills I would fain explore.

Over the stunted sagebrush sea. Under the glistening, sweltering sun, lobbies, beckons and smiles at me. Its cruel, deceiving waters run only a ghost of a green-clad vale—A desert specter that lures and snarest calls me over a death-marked trail. Into a furnace that seeths and glares.

It fades and dies as I reel ahead. Over the arid and burning waste—a picture of beauty an instant spread, And then forever from sight effaced, out its bosom, hell-and white. The bones of many are bleaching bare.

Who turned aside at the living sight In the painted depths of the desert's glare.

From "Trail Dust of a Maverick," a book of cowboy poems by E. A. Brinley. (Dodd, Mead & Co.)

A GREAT SWISS STORY.

T is only when some literary gem, that has long lain hidden in the obscurities of another language, is translated into our tongue that one sighs for a universal forum. What a world of treasures must be lost to us because others have taken the trouble or had the good luck to do prospecting for it in the right places!

Many years ago a German Swiss, Gottlieb Keller by name, wrote, among other things, a series of stories called "Seldwyla People." One of the stories had the subtitle "A Village Romeo and Juliet." Seldwyla people were folk of a Swiss hamlet, and the village Romeo and Juliet were the son and daughter respectively of two peasants who had joined themselves and their families in a "quartier" in the country, a small Swiss hamlet. Since the stories were written, many translators perhaps have fancied at them curiously and passed them by, until at last one turned "A Village Romeo and Juliet" into English, thereby sensibly enriching and adorning our own literature. That the work should have been so long delayed seems strange, too, since Nietzsche had pronounced the collection one of the four masterpieces of German prose.

The author of "A Village Romeo and Juliet" himself realized what, if anything, would be the strong claim upon him. At the very beginning he pointed out that it would rest upon the great, unsentimental, human verities—that what is true of Capulets and Montagues is also true of Manzies and Martie—that the Colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady are sisters under the skin."

In other words, he had discovered that we are alike, whatever our social ranking; that our emotions and instincts are elemental and that they, after all, control the common history of mankind. He points out that the fairest flowers will blossom, whether the seeds fall upon the grassy hillside or in the muck.

The boy and the girl in this story played together in childhood, when their families were friendly, but were estranged for years in the sordid, bitter feud, only to meet again when both were at the extremes of poverty and despair. To meet again was to love again, a love that seemed hopeless so far as earthly happiness was concerned. They decided upon one perfect day before they should separate forever. The story of that day is a wonderful picture of sunlight and shadow. At times it arises to the rapture of poetry, but it never sinks below the level of highest prose.

Like Horace's pallid death, the narrative marches along with steady footsteps, never hurrying, never faltering, but keeping steadily and always in view the goal—no clay-trap awaiting after effect in the episodes, yet each episode adds its mite to the accumulation of emotional effect that, in the end, is to break upon the reader and overwhelm him. Some of these incidents are sketched with the warm human insight of a Robert Burns.

There is the incident when the girl wishes to dance but has no shoes, and the boy sells his last possession to buy the shoes. There is the account of how the girl "played like" the boy had come into fortune and already was spending the money in imagination. There is the account of how he was prepared to go to bed to be married and reward the blessings of the kindly innkeeper. There is the last story of how they put aside the temptation to join the ribald crew of men and women, following the black-faced fiddler. And finally there is the last story of how they decided it made no difference whether life lasted another day or another year than this holiday, and how, in each others' arms, they floated down the river to find everlasting peace.

Edith Wharton, in an introductory note to the translation, which is by A. C. Chapman, points out that each of these episodes is remarkable for its shell-like perfection. The drawing is a master hand. If Keller had written nothing else, this one story would be sufficient to make his fame secure. (Scribner's.)

A RESTFUL BOOK.

RACE DAWSON, in a little book, tells "How to Rest" every day, even as we are doing our work, is of some value to a restless people like the Americans. It is even restful to read the few chapters, they are short and clear. (Crowell.)

Chinese Diplomat Who Writes About America

WU TINGFANG.

MR. WU ON AMERICA.

WU TINGFANG, former Chinese Minister to this country, calls his new book "America Through the Spectacles of an Oriental Diplomat." Commendation of Mr. Wu's opinion is in order. For with the spectacles, and with the sharp eyes behind them, the diplomat has seen the merit in some of the things least appreciated, the follies in some of the things deemed most necessary, and the interesting features in some of the things held most misplaced. In the United States.

The book is meager as wide as scope as James Bryce's "American Commonwealth," and it treats a number of matters which the Englishman omitted. It is not a deep study of underlying tendencies, but a bright and accurate view of surface manifestations.

It is in the chapters on "Women" and "Costumes" that the reader most plainly sees the friendly, but curious smile of this critic from an older civilization. "It is the attractiveness and beauty of the American girls," he writes, "which makes them so attractive to many foreign husbands." Once I entered the breakfast room at a wedding in Washington. I saw the bridesmaids and a number of young men. Going up to one of the bridesmaids whom I had previously met, and who was the daughter of a Senator, I asked her when it would be her turn to become a bride. She modestly said that she did not know, as she had not yet had an offer. Turning to the group of young men who were in the room, I jocularly remarked to one of them, "This is a beautiful lady; would you not like to marry her?" He replied, "I shall be most delighted to." Then I said to the young lady, "Will you accept his offer?" She seemed slightly embarrassed, and said something to the effect that as she did not know the gentleman she could not give a definite answer. Later, he proceeds to relate, he was invited to the wedding of the young people, and was thanked by the bride's mother for his "good offices."

In writing of fashions and costumes, he holds up the "merry widow" of a few years ago as a horrible example. Some of the wearers, he remarks, "are not wives, spinsteresses, or married women whose husbands are very much alive—and the hats are as large as three feet in diameter." He compares American feminine fashions unfavorably with those of China in respect to warmth, to comfort and to modesty. As to the fourth function of dress, ornament, he admits that the question is more one of individual opinion, but he condemns woman's hautpines and trailing skirts. Men's dress, he adds, is not superior to the women's, and while he commends the courage of Dr. Mary Walker, he does not think she bettered herself by changing from skirts to trousers. He urges an international congress to decide on the best forms of dress for men and women, to free both sexes from the tyranny of fashion. "Brave Americans," he exclaims, "Wake up! Assert your freedom!"

In a chapter on "Dinners, Banquets, etc." Mr. Wu tells of the overloaded menus with which we kill off our public men. Under the head of "Manners," he oddly describes the interruption of parents' remarks, in some households he has visited, by "small, piping voices" of a child, correcting the parent on some statement of fact. He contrasts this with the Chinese custom that children are to speak only when spoken to. Under "Business Methods," he mentions stock watering as "a new kind of proceeding to Oriental," the ethics of which he is willing to leave to the Christian clergy for discussion. In chapters on international relations, he suggests the admission of farm laborers of all nationalities, with new restrictions on the franchise if Americans do not desire them as citizens. In arguing against a continuation of the Chinese exclusion policy, he calls the enforcement of this policy in Hawaii and the Philippines "still more inexcusable."

Coming from a nation to which America sends many missionaries, Mr. Wu notes with concern the absence of religious or ethical teaching in our public schools.

He proposes a standard of ethical instruction, based on 15 mottoes or rules of life. Among these are "Honesty is the best policy," "Live and let live," and the Confucian maxim "Do unto others what ye would not that others should do unto you." (Stokes.)

The complications born of the task of filling duty thus imposed upon Ariadne Skipwith are many and melodramatic—sometimes ultra-melodramatic—and the latter half of the story is full of thills, hairbreadth escapes, and suspenseful perils, and all the sinister menace possible to be created by a villain whose villainy is undeniably all wool and a yard wide at every stage of the game.

It isn't necessary here to tell you how the story ends. But it may be well, in order to keep up your courage and sustain your hope, to bid you remember at all moments that Ariadne Skipwith is a heroine of somewhat old-fashioned kind literature and that it would be a direful deed, on the part of any author, to leave her unhappy at the finish.

You'll enjoy the story and, most of all, you'll appreciate certain of its humorous character-types, black and white, if you possess any intimate knowledge of Virginia and its people. (Little, Brown & Co.)

A TRAVEL-ROMANCE IN EGYPT.

THOSE familiar with the writings of those clever collaborators, C. N. and A. M. Williamson, will hardly need the assurance that something "happened" when they took in hand to tell of things Egyptian. They have produced

"I Happened in Egypt" a work of travel and adventure which is, at the same time, a whole library of lore stories.

The tale is told by Lord Ernest Bowring, the "oldest family in Ireland, and the poorest." He has to pilot, from Alexandria to Khartoum, a party which includes the reincarnated Cleopatra, able to recognize a number of the scenes of her former existence, a high British army officer, New York heiress and other sentimental persons and conspirators.

One person, rebuked for splitting his infinitives, confesses that he does not know what the offense consists of, but hopes he has never inadvertently committed it before a lady. The younger of twin girls laments the alienation of a once faithful suitor, who gave as his excuse that he feared she might never get fat like their mother, whereas the young woman tearfully protests, "We scarcely eat anything except pickles, on purpose to keep thin." The mechanical make-up of the body is attractive and appropriate, and the way it opens flat will be a relief. (Doubleday, Page & Co.)

A VIRGINIA LOVE TALE.

PICTURESQUELY rich in Virginia character and atmosphere is "Ariadne of Allan Water," in which Sidney McCall, author of "Truth Dexter," tells the interesting romance of beautiful Ariadne Skipwith, a typical daughter of the Old Dominion.

The course of true love never did run smooth, as all the world knows, and it doesn't in this instance. It isn't the fault of Miss Ariadne Skipwith, both of whom are as loyal and true and single-minded in their devotion to one another as were Romeo and Juliet themselves. It's the fault of Ariadne's father, who solicits for the happiness of his second wife, drew up a last will and testament that tied Ariadne to her frivolous stepmother until death should part them, Ariadne having given her sacred word to fulfill her dying father's wish in this direction.

TUBERCULOSIS TREATMENT.

THE white plague has attracted a great deal of attention from the medical as well as the lay world because it has become generally understood that tuberculosis is incurable and that it is preventable. Investigations show that it is really a disease, and cannot affect the body in any way without spreading it. It is also social in the sense that it is a result of social or economic conditions. It is one of the plagues we could banish from the earth by changing the environment of people.

These problems in connection with tuberculosis are discussed by Dr. Edward O. Otis. Dr. Otis has given many years of his life to the study of this malady.

His studies and conclusions are given in "Tuberculosis, Its Cause, Cure and Prevention." It is a book which will be of great interest to all professional men.

1 KILLED; 3 HURT BY CARS; GIRL IS SAVED BY FENDER

Former Detective Loses Life and Another Is Injured by Same Car Within 30 Minutes.

One man was killed and another injured by the same Olive street car. Three others were hurt in street car accidents and a little girl's life was saved by a fender Friday.

While crossing the street at Ewing avenue and Olive streets, Harry Knoefel, 16 years old, former private detective who lived at the Mozart Hotel, was struck and killed by an eastbound Olive street car.

Half an hour later John Taiton, 50 years old, of 2325 Locust street, was knocked down and injured at Fourth and Locust streets when he attempted to board the same car which had killed Knoefel. Cuts on his head and face were treated at the dispensary.

The crew of the car which killed Knoefel and injured Taiton were arrested on completing their trip but were released when witnesses told the police the accidents could not have been avoided.

Frederick Winfinger of 1411 South Compton avenue was thrown to the street and injured when a Fourth street car struck his wagon at Grand avenue and Crittenton street. He is at the city hospital.

Geo. Blair, postmaster at Murphysboro, Ill., was injured at Clark and Easton avenues when he attempted to board a Wellington car on the wrong side of the street.

Panny Peter, 4 years old, of 5741 Easton avenue, fell in front of a Wellington car at Easton avenue and Shawmut place. She was picked up by the fender and was only slightly injured.

MRS. E. ANSON MORE DIES

Body Is Being Brought From East to West.

Mrs. E. Anson More, widow of Gen. E. Anson More, who lived in St. Louis and who died in 1898, died in Bridgeton, N. J., Friday. The body is being brought to St. Louis for burial Monday.

Mrs. More, with her daughter, Miss Alice More, formerly assistant to the late Halsey C. Ives in the St. Louis School of Fine Arts, moved to New Jersey shortly after the death of Gen. More. The General served as Quartermaster General of Missouri during the Civil War, and afterward went into the commission business.

Six children who survive Mrs. More are Mrs. Edward A. More, E. Anson More Jr., of Denver; James B. More of Fort Smith, Ark.; Paul E. More, recently editor of "The Mason," in New York; Louis P. More, professor of physics in Cincinnati University, and Miss Alice More.

Infant Asleep Between Parents Believed to Have Been Smothered.

Mrs. Elizabeth Schelling of 3507 South Second street awakened suddenly about 4 a.m. Saturday and found her 4-months-old son, Anthony, dead.

While she made frantic efforts to resuscitate the infant, Joseph E. Schelling, the father, went in search of a physician, but was unable to find one.

The parents told the police they went to bed with the baby lying on the bed between them. They believed one of them rolled over while asleep and smothered the child.

Naming a New Candy Package

"What's in a Name?" Many splendid things. Beauty, sentiment, value—if the name be right.

So you see the choosing of a name is mightily important, especially for a candy package which people must remember and call for when they want to purchase it.

Now we have produced a package of candy so dainty and attractive that it deserved just the very best name we could find. Hundreds of names were suggested and rejected. Then a little girl saw the candies. "Why, they're just like big, round moons," she said. "Moons made of sugar."

So there you are. And this is the name, printed in big letters

Sugar Moons

You won't forget that, will you—SUGAR MOONS. Full Moons. Full of goodness, of sweetness, of delicious assorted flavors. New Moons, Summer Moons, Harvest Moons, Honey Moons and Money Moons—all rolled together to make the surpassing goodness of Sugar Moons. Could any name fit better? And it means so much.

SUGAR MOONS, in the handsome package, are sold at candy shops, news stands, drug stores—everywhere you find candy for sale. The demand is so great that we haven't been able to supply all of them yet, and perhaps they're not at your favorite place—but they soon will be. Remember the name—SUGAR MOONS. You'll find the candy as good as the name, and the price is but

Law School's Only Girl Is Elected University Beauty

MISS WINONA MCCOSKRIE.

Co-Ed Who Has Changed Her Mind About Being an Attorney Is Kansas Queen of May.

LAWRENCE, Kas., April 11.—

WINONA I. MCCOSKRIE, the only woman in the law school at the University of Kansas, has been formally declared by ballot to be the prettiest girl at the university. Miss McCoskrie's official title is Queen of the May.

The May Queen is elected by the women of the senior class and is honored with a festival on the first day of May. This year, the festival planned is an outdoor production of "Pinafore" on the green in front of Fraser hall, one of the oldest buildings on the university's campus. Miss McCoskrie will be escorted to the ship by the maids of honor and will be crowned on the quarter deck of the "Pinafore."

In addition to being the prettiest girl at the university, Miss McCoskrie has another claim to distinction. She is the only woman among 220 law students at the University of Kansas. She wades through the bulky volumes in the law library just as the boys do and passes her quizzes with high grades.

When asked if she expected to take up the practice of law after she had been graduated from the university, Miss McCoskrie smiled and fingered a diamond ring on her left hand.

"I am afraid that other plans will interfere with my opening a law office," she laughed.

NEW TRIAL IN UNIVERSAL TRANSFER CASE ASKED

Action of United Railways Co. Delays Enforcement of Court Order

A motion for a new trial was filed by the United Railways Friday in the universal transfer case. Circuit Judge Grimm, in deciding against the Street Car Co., last Monday, ordered it to issue a transfer upon a transfer to its patrons.

Sixteen absurd reasons why the motion should be granted are given. The filing of the motion acts as a suspension of judgment. If it should be overruled, an appeal probably will be taken to the Supreme Court, which would act as a further suspension.

Says She Lost $15 Belonging to Assailant.

Miss Ada Hannick, 23 years old, who was stabbed in the side with a rusty pocket knife Friday afternoon, by Miss Christine Alley, 30 years old, with whom she boarded at 3738 Hickory street, is recovering at the city hospital.

Miss Hannick told the police she lost $15 of $100 which Miss Alley gave her to pay an undertaker's bill. She said she was ashamed to tell Miss Alley of the loss and determined to make it good and pay the remainder herself. Miss Alley found the receipt for $15 in Miss Hannick's room Wednesday and attacked her. Miss Alley is held by the police.

POLICEMAN QUITS AFTER 17 YEARS TO RAISE FOWLS

In Letter to Board He Says He Leaves With Malice Towards None.

Policeman William D. Wright, after 17 years' service, resigned Friday to engage in fancy poultry raising near Arcadia, Mo., where he has purchased a farm. He is more than 60 years old. For some years he has been acting as desk sergeant at the Magnolia Avenue Station.

Wright closed his letter to the Police Board with this paragraph:

"With malice towards none, with heartfelt gratitude for my superior officers and with the hope that some day a generous public will provide some sort of pension for a worn-out officer, I am, respectfully yours, William D. Wright.

Wright was a member of the Police

Relief Association and on retiring from the service he receives from the association $1000.

Ancestry traced back to the Mayflower is claimed by Wright, who is one of the Wright family of Boone County, Mo., which boasts of a membership of 800. Three years ago he managed a reunion of the family at Columbia, Boone County.

William Halloran, 34 years old, 1314 North Eighteenth street, a plumber, was taken to the city hospital about 10:30 p.m. Friday with a serious knife wound in the left cheek. He would not tell the police who had cut him. Late Andrew Droege, 22 years old, and his brother-in-law, John Sullivan, both 1312 Cass avenue, were arrested.

The police and Sullivan expected family matters would be cleared up. Late Sullivan, accompanied by Halloran, returned and renewed the quarrel and Droege drew a knife, the police said and cut Halloran.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Two Editorials Criticized.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I read many of your editorials on great happenings and questions of the day, and in most of them you are both fair and logical in the positions you take. But in your recent editorials on the action of Secretary Daniels in ruling out the wine mess, and the election in Alabama, which resulted in the choice of a Senator for United States Senator. I do not think you are fair in your statement of the two cases, or arrive at conclusions by the route of sound logic.

In the wine mess case you claim that the Secretary was overstepping his power or right in putting on the "old" and that, too, it was a reflection on the honor of the men in the service. Yet, you will agree, I am sure, with the rule of the great railway corporations that their employees shall not drink while on duty. This rule is even more drastic and far-reaching than that of Mr. Daniels. I have never read an editorial in any paper saying that this rule was not right and proper and not within the power of those making it. Our Uncle Sam has the same right in managing his affairs as we have in our home.

In the Alabama election Mr. Hobson did not run on a dead issue, as a reading of the contests in the elections over the country will show. And if you had been conversant with the actual facts, you would have known that prohibition was not the basis of Mr. Hobson's defeat. It was simply a case of too much Hobson. Mr. Underwood would have been elected just the same had he advocated the prohibition of the liquor business.

SAMUEL TILDEN LARKIN.

A Suggestion as To the Initiative.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
In reference to the initiative law, I want to say to the Freeholders before they complete the new charter, that the provision that 15 per cent of the voters shall be all that is required to sign a petition and compel an election is not a good idea because it would not be a hard matter to get them, and the people would be put to a lot of trouble for nothing because if the proposed law was not a good, beneficial law, it would be defeated at the election. If it were a good law, then it could get any number of signatures, and would be 75 per cent would be better. It proved that on the bridge bond issue.

South American Coffee Imports.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
"Sorister" thanks "Coffees" for his information, but it happens some members of Leinen's family are engaged in the coffee business and he has opportunity to know that the coffee brokers of St. Louis have been trying for years, and lately with some success, to establish New Orleans as a coffee market. "Coffees" figures are for 1913, and according to the showing New York receives twice as much coffee as New Orleans. Lots of that coffee comes to St. Louis by way of Robin Hood's barn via the railroads. Has New York twice the geographical trade territory of New Orleans that it should get twice the amount of coffee? And would it get it in a natural and legitimate way without the combined and associated interests of steamships and railroads?

The English people are not great coffee drinkers. New York and Boston are situated with tea, but New York, according to "Coffees" figures, receives twice the amount of raw coffee.

Stoves Out of Cars Too Soon.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I certainly am glad some one has spunk enough to make the United States come to time. The company took the stoves out of the small cars at the same time they took them out of the passenger cars. Mr. Postoffice Inspector went to them and told them to put them back in at once, and put them back at once they did.

Oh that we had some city official with grit enough to go to Capt. McCulloch and tell him to put them in at once and keep them until warm weather is sure, and upon his refusal, arrest him and continue to arrest him every day the law regarding stoves is violated.

Divorce and Suffrage.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
There has been some alarm lest woman suffrage shall increase divorces. The year before equal suffrage was adopted Colorado granted 955 divorces. The year after it was adopted she granted only 937. In the 20 years since the adoption of equal suffrage there have been 1,000 divorces. Anywhere near so high as it was before women got the ballot. In the recent debate on woman suffrage in the United States Senate, Senator Shaffroth of Colorado read letters from all the principal Judges in his State. All declared as like W. had never seen or heard of a divorce to read women suffrage.

WHY THE BED-SHEET BALLOT?

In presidential years each Missouri voter votes for 22 officials; often he has to pick the 22 from a list of 150 or more candidates named on the bed-sheet ballot.

Every two years between presidential elections the Missouri voter votes for 13 officials. Separate elections are held for school directors, and in the cities, for city officials.

The Short Ballot Committee of the St. Louis Civic League is giving away copies of a leaflet urging Missourians to cut down the number of elections so that the voter who don't make a business of politics can learn enough about the few who must be elected, and about what they stand for and whom they represent, to pick the best men.

This leaflet the Civic League suggests that these offices, now elective, be made appointive: State-Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of State, Treasurer, Auditor, Attorney-General.

County-Treasurer, Circuit Court Clerk, County Clerk, Recorder of Deeds, Constable.

We doubt if the line ought to be drawn just that way. Probably the people ought to elect the Lieutenant-Governor, for the same reasons that they must elect their Governor—because the Lieutenant-Governor, when the Governor dies, or is removed from office, or resigns, or leaves the State temporarily, becomes Acting Governor.

We think the people ought to elect their Attorney-General, because, in an era of readjusting the laws and law enforcement to a new organization of industry, it is necessary to have an Attorney-General, the people's State prosecuting officer, who is directly obligated to the rank and file of the people.

JOSEPH PULITZER.

April 10, 1907.

Members of the House of Delegates can save the city $60,000 by voting for the Council bill providing for a bridge bond election in accord with the initiative petition.

By voting against the bill they will vote to put the city to the unnecessary expenditure of $60,000.

Opinions with regard to approaches have nothing to do with this matter. The bridge bond election will be held regardless of the action of the House on the bill.

The only issue is whether the city shall spend only $60,000 for one election or $120,000 for two elections.

How many members of the House can be forced by Boss McCarthy and the A. & M. lobby to mulct the city to the amount of $60,000.

One of the principal officers dealing with finances and accounts, either the Treasurer or Auditor, should be elected, and independent of the administration.

We see no objection to making the State Secretary, Treasurer or Auditor, the merely clerical officials, appointive. The people must elect their law makers and their law enforcers, but they can safely allow their elected officials to appoint the State's clerks and bookkeepers.

So safe as he safely can, the Missouri voter ought to make his elections simpler, and cheaper, and the ablest, most trusted leaders in public life agree that the short ballot, as a substitute for the bed-sheet ballot we now have, is a good way to get those results. The cities are all moving the same way, partly to enable voters to pick fewer and better officials, partly to cut the cost of elections.

The fact that Missourians can't get the short ballot in State or county without amending the State Constitution is, as we see it, another good argument in favor of holding a State convention to draft a new Constitution. The present Constitution was a good one for 1876, when it was adopted, but it does not meet the needs of the times today.

Wilson, Roosevelt, Taft and most of the ablest, best liked leaders in public life, advocate the short ballot, for efficiency, economy and, most of all, because it would reduce the power of the professional politicians and of the corporate interests whom too many of them secretly serve, and would enlarge the plain people's control over their public business.

SOMETHING BETTER FOR KANSAS CITY.

Kansas City voters' refusal to adopt the committee form of government leaves them free, when they do abandon the ward system, to adopt the 1914 model, city manager system.

TO A WOBBLING STAND-PATTER.

Advice to Dr. Bartholdt, who is planning to run again for Congress: Don't. Several of your eleven elections to the office are to be explained only by the fact that the people of the Tenth had got in the habit of voting for you and marked their ballots in the subconscious state. Your late announcement that you were out of politics gave too much pleasure while it was not known it had a string to it to suppose that the sway of the old habit will be easily resumed.

The double ordeal of the primary and election will have humiliation in them for you somewhere. The district wants a representative, up-to-date man of progressive sentiment as its Congressman. So invertebrate a stand-patter should have no difficulty in standing pat on your former announcement.

SQUARING COLOMBIA'S ACCOUNT.

President Wilson specifically denies that we have consented to offer an apology to Colombia and the publication of the official text of the new treaty on April 15 will dispense of the general charge that it contains humiliating features.

To pay Colombia $10,000,000 more than the sum in which England indemnified us for unfriendly acts during our own struggle over secession may seem to some a too generous settlement, but the amount of the award is a mere detail. As to the justice of the claim, there can be little serious difficulty.

Whatever justification may be found in expediency and the promotion of a great improvement conferring benefits for all time on the population of the planet we inhabit, the fact remains that during the late unpleasantness between Panama and Colombia that aid is to be withdrawn after a time and give each community where such a school is located opportunity to finance its own school.

The School of Social Economy was started several years ago with lectures by workers in philanthropy. It was then known as the School of Philanthropy. Shortly after that it became affiliated with the Missouri State University at Columbia. In view of the fact that students in the school must do practice work as part of their studies it was removed to St. Louis.

While the case of Colombia is complete, we are peculiarly impotent in defense. We forced England to the bar of the world's public opinion, subjected her to sharp interrogation, applied the coercion of logic and principle that compelled the huge payment in adjustment of the Alabama claims. For us—now that Colombia occupies the advantageous position in equity we formerly occupied, while we occupy England's position—to resist a measure of justice would not merely make us absurd. It would make us ridiculous.

The School of Social Economy has done a valuable work in the city. It has made investigations in child mortality, standards of living, industrial diseases, women's wages, lodging houses, etc.

Some of its findings helped in the passage of remedial legislation. Its investigations in connection with the blind resulted in the establishment of the Missouri Association for the Blind, which has done excellent work.

To square the account with our neighbor will involve no diminution in national dignity and prestige. On the contrary, it will be an act of the righteousness that exalteth a nation, of the moral sensitiveness that wins new esteem, of the probity that places national respect on a firm basis.

President Wilson's State.

From the Washington Post.
Senator Martine wants to know what stripe in the flag is New Jersey's. Thirteenth, of course, the lucky State.

ates are holding social service positions in St. Louis. Special courses for directors and contributors to philanthropic work have been given. These were attended by hundreds of men and women in St. Louis, resulting in more efficiency in the care of the poor and unfortunate.

The withdrawal of the Russell Sage subsidy should make no difference in the life of the school. It has become part of the civic life of St. Louis and as such should continue its work. Surely Washington University will not allow the School of Social Economy to fail because the outside subsidy is withdrawn.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

BEAUTY CULTURE.

THANKFUL.—Our skins are fine and consequently less liable to dry; others are filled with large pores and constantly sending forth more oily skins must be fed with cream, oil, and treated very gently; the oily skins must be treated with astringents and drying lotions. Those with oily skins should use powders very sparingly, while those with oily skins may use them very freely. Rice powder is the safest powder for oily skins. Those with oily skins are dry is made up of lanolin, almond oil, macadam oil and white wax, with a few drops of rose water. Combinations of almond oil and white vaseline are very good. A good lotion for a dry skin, to be used during the day, is made of rose water and oil of bergamot. A good one for an oily skin is made up of equal parts alcohol and tincture of benzoin combined with white wine vinegar. An oily face may be bathed with rose water, glycerin and rose water are adapted to oily skins to dry skin.

WHERE IS THE TITANIC?

H. B.—The Scientific American says there is only one reply—"The Titanic is at the bottom"—and gives this explanation: "The density of the water at the bottom of the sea is far greater than the density of the sea water. Density is confused with pressure. The pressure increases as the depth increases, and pounds per square foot, at a depth of 100 feet, divers sometimes work at a depth of as much as 150 feet, where provided with special armored diving suits, divers have to go to depths of 200 feet, but nothing approaching the depth at which the Titanic now lies. This depth is given as 12,000 feet, which is considerably over two miles, and the pressure amounts to 750,000 pounds per square foot. This is only natural to suppose that under these conditions the density of the water would be increased; but laboratory experiments have shown that the water in the first case was under normal atmospheric pressure. With this clearly in mind, it is very evident that an object that would not float in air would not float at any intermediate point, but must surely sink to the bottom; for it could not descend to the surface. However, for all practical purposes we may consider that a given volume of water is not more compressible at the bottom than at the top.

BOBBY BURNS TO BOX JABEZ WHITE AT FUTURE CITY

Local Club Will Present Bantam-weight New to Local Fight Followers.

NEXT Tuesday night the Future City Athletic Club is going to show a newcomer in the person of Bobby Burns, a bantamweight from Dallas, and he will be matched against Jabez White, who has become very popular since his first appearance. It was against Nate Kahl of Chicago. Very little is known of Burns' city, but President Tommy Sullivan has been duly impressed by his record of 35 bouts, though he hardly had matched him against a boxer as White. Burns is a real fighter and has been about two years. His heat work seems to have been against Mike Orr of Kansas City, and a like record shows that we were 10 times. Orrison is to be rematched as the boxer who gave up his decision to fight for Walter Bates at the Queen's Athletic Club, when that organization was having a hard time on Eastern Avenue. Burns claims two 10-round wins with Nate Jackson of Tulsa, Oklahoma in a class of his own. He must be above the average to hold the Oklahoma boy even.

May Take Kelly Away.
It is rumored that Mal Doyle, who has been associated with the boxer in St. Louis for so many years, is going West to engage in the racing game, and this may be the loss of Kelly. Doyle, a son of boxer Leo, signed with Doyle's contract with the sorrel-top as manager for five years, and it runs until 1918. The terms were not disclosed, but the compensation is in some instances, but speculative interest is shown in the market greatly.

Quickly a hand was raised and an eager voice called out: "My mother wears happens in her head."
